SOCIAL SECURITY COORDINATION
FREE MOVEMENT OF WORKERS
&
POSTING

DECEMBER 2025

INTRODUCTION

This document presents a collection of publications in the fields of social security coordination, free movement of workers, and the posting of workers. The bibliography includes books, book chapters, and articles addressing these topics. Where available, links to access the publications have also been provided. This bibliography is not intended to be exhaustive; it presents only a selection of the available literature.

The materials have been identified and compiled by the MoveS national experts, who are primarily legal specialists with expertise in the national frameworks governing labour mobility, social security coordination and posting. These experts represent the 32 countries traditionally covered by the project, namely the EU Member States as well as the EEA countries, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom.

Drawing on their professional knowledge and familiarity with national legal and academic developments, the experts have selected publications that they consider particularly relevant for understanding the legal frameworks, policy debates, and scholarly discussions in these areas. In certain cases, the experts have also included literature that goes beyond the national context, referring to works with a comparative or broader European perspective that they considered relevant or of particular interest.

The Finnish labour market needs foreign employees. In the previous term of government, legislative amendments were introduced to make it easier for entrepreneurs and experts to move to Finland and thereby promote economic growth and employment. Measures have also been taken to facilitate immigration of students and researchers. The Migration Review brings together issues related to migration from the perspective of policy formulation and legislation. The Review is compiled annually by the Ministry of the Interior's Migration Department. Link

The national report commissioned annually by the OECD presents a concise summary of Finland's policies regarding migration, key legal amendments, a comprehensive media review and up-to-date statistics. The report covers 2018 and the first six months of 2019. The themes covered in the report are based on guidance from the OECD. Link

According to a review published by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Employment on 21 January 2020, employment alone is not an indication of successful integration, nor is there just one indicator for effective integration. Every four years, the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Employment's Centre of Expertise in Immigrant Integration publishes a comprehensive review of integration as part of the integration monitoring system. The monitoring system and the 2019 review are divided into the following themes: employment, education, wellbeing, participation and two-way integration. Link

This articles shows that the special feature of temporary agency work is that the employee does not work for the agency which concludes the employment contract with them, but for a third party, the user company, with which the agency enters into a civil law contract for the remunerated transfer of workforce. The article summarises how an international element can appear in this tripartite employment relationship. It covers the rules under which an agency may conclude an employment contract with a foreign employee and also the cases where the agency and the user company are established in different states. Although Hungarian law generally prohibits third-country nationals to work in Hungary as agency workers, this is made possible by an expanding range of exceptions. The article explores the labour law and social security law situation of third-country agency workers in Hungary. Link

- The Court of Justice of the European Union, in case C-477/21, stated that daily rest is additional to weekly rest, even when it directly precedes the latter and even when national legislation grants workers a period of weekly rest greater than that required by EU law. The case concerned the Hungarian railway company MÁV-START and one of its employed drivers, who had been denied daily rest whenever the latter preceded weekly rest. The Court stated that daily and weekly rest periods constitute two autonomous rights that pursue different objectives, and workers must be guaranteed the actual enjoyment of each of those rights. Moreover, the Court points out that the Directive expressly provides a minimum period for the right to weekly rest and that this period is in addition to the period relating to the right to daily rest. It follows that the daily rest period is not part of the weekly rest period but is in addition to it, even if it directly precedes the latter.

A detailed, multi-dimensional analysis of the case (and its consequences) is provided in the new special issue of the journal Munkajog (Labour Law), Orac, 2023/2. link

The report is in Norwegian, but it also has a comprehensive summary in English. It should be noted that even if there is some development in "atypical work" in Norway, ordinary employment dominates. More than 85 per cent of the workforce are in "ordinary" employment, although weekly working hours may vary. link

In the last decade, the tourism sector in Portugal registered strong growth, with sustained and continuous rises in tourism arrivals and receipts. However, the Covid-19 pandemic abruptly stopped the travel sector in Portugal, immobilizing the movement of people, resulting in significant changes in tourists' behaviour, decisions and planning. A sample of more than 300 tourists in Central Portugal, one of the most diverse tourism destinations, led the authors to conclude that the current pandemic had a significant impact on travel plans, decisions and tourist consumption. On the other hand, the authors assessed the change in behaviour and the acceptance of the safety measures imposed in the context of the pandemic. The results of the study allowed the indication of strategies for destination managers to recover tourist attractiveness in a Post-COVID scenario.

The study addresses the main aspects related to the legal regime of various categories of foreign workers from outside the European Union, including citizens of the Republic of Moldova, the Republic of Serbia, and Ukraine, for whom there are specific derogatory provisions. Additionally, the legal framework for foreign workers is analysed, particularly in light of the legislation regarding foreigners and border regulations. link
